Ironbound Committee Against Toxic Wastes presents the film

"Poletown Lives"

The story of how a Detroit neighborhood named 'Poletown' fought th destruction of their homes by General Motors. The people of this Polisi working class neighborhood had to fight when General Motors with th help of the government wanted to destroy their homes to build a parkin lot for their new plant. The film shows the courage of the people, and how they organized, demonstrated, and even got arrested, to hold onto their neighborhood, their home. It's a familiar story of government cooperation with corporate greed, destroying our lives in the name of their profits

Ralph Nadar says about it, "An engrossing film on the corporate state it action. The film is a must."
